BLUEGAME DEBUTS BG54

Sanlorenzo's sister brand held the world premiere of its newest BG series model at this year's Palma show in Spain.

Bluegame staged the world premiere of the BG54 at this year's Palma International Boat Show (April 28-May 1), where the new model was on display alongside a BGX60, the smaller sister of the iconic BGX70 that revolutionised the Italian brand.

Available with two or three cabins, the BG54 is the newest model in the brand's more traditional BG range, which was expanded last year by the addition of the BG72, an 'open' version of the BGX70. At over 54ft 4in length and with an almost 16ft beam, the BG54 sits between the BG42 and BG62 models that helped relaunch the brand under Sanlorenzo's ownership.

In true Bluegame style, the BG54 features a huge aft swim platform that comfortably fits multiple sunpads lengthways. The model features the Volvo Penta IPS propulsion system, which allows the engines (twin D11-IPS800 or D11-IPS950s) to sit below the aft platform and create more room inside the lower deck.

Up three steps is the open cockpit, which features sofas on all four sides around a flexible table, while forward is a bench-seat helm station facing a reverse-angled windshield. The hardtop covers the helm and cockpit seating areas and even offers a small sunpad on top.

The walkaround design features side passages to the bow, which has a forward-facing sofa and a large island sunpad.

Steps from the helm area to the lower deck lead to the interior galley on starboard side, from where guests have day head access to the port bathroom shared by the forward cabin. Midships is the option of a full-beam en-suite owner's cabin midships or two similar guest cabins, with the en-suite or shared bathroom to port.

Meanwhile, Sanlorenzo displayed its new SL90A asymmetric model at the Palma show alongside the SX76 crossover yacht. Bluegame, like Sanlorenzo, is represented in Asia by Simpson Marine. ☞
